Better systems integration energize real time data across all departments

With 60 years of experience, MUSKITA is one of the most technologically advanced industries of its kind worldwide, specializing in the design and manufacture of aluminium profiles and architectural systems. Muskita products are used internationally, across multiple sectors ranging from aviation to agriculture, which is a testament to the cutting-edge technology, engineering, quality and skilled workforce that have been paramount to the company's current and future success. To better serve its customers, the Organization needed to address business challenges such as the manual process of sales orders, the paper-based production planning as well as having little versatility in data warehousing.
